

Join CEOs, executives, and thousands of colleagues around the country to step up and join the fight against cancer.

American Cancer Society Fit2Be Cancer Free is a virtual fundraising and activity challenge promoting cancer prevention in the workplace. Participants navigate an interactive map that includes impact milestones and a live chat feature to engage and motivate each other.

Fit2Be begins on April 10th, 2025, with the CEO Challenge—a one-day event where CEOs nationwide compete to cover the furthest distance from midnight to 11:59 PM.

“Ana” A-I powered navigation support on cancer.org

Introducing Ana on cancer.org

The American Cancer Society, in collaboration with Google, is launching a first-of-its-kind AI-powered search designed to support people seeking information on cancer.org about ACS and cancer prevention, detection, treatment, and survivorship.

With Ana, users can easily find answers to their questions, engage in live chat, or connect with NCIC for further assistance. Our mission is to empower patients by offering comprehensive support and information at every stage of their cancer journey

VOICES

VOICES of Black Women, a groundbreaking initiative led by the American Cancer Society, is calling on Black women from all walks of life to join the movement. This isn't just a study; it's a collective commitment to understanding and improving the health of Black women across the nation.
